Greek Technology Field Outdoor Power Supply

Overview

Does the Greek power system need more decarbonization?

Nevertheless, new and more ambitious targets have been set towards further decarbonization, bringing new challenges for the Greek power system. The Greek power system, shown schematically in Fig. 1, serves the needs of the mainland and numerous adjacent interconnected islands. The gross electricity demand during 2022 amounted to 50.7 TWh.

Are PV systems a solution to voltage stability problems in Greece?

As shown in Fig. 3, PVs have considerably reduced the (transmission) system load; this fact contributed drastically to solve the severe voltage stability problems that the Greek system faced for almost two decades, especially during peak hours (noon) in summer.

Is the Greek power system entering a “large res penetration” era?

It is obvious that the Greek power system has entered the “large RES penetration” era. This fact has brought new technical problems and challenges as far as system security is concerned but also it drastically affects the electricity market since the share of conventional thermal plants has been significantly reduced.

Is Greece a regional energy player?

In recent years, following the financial crisis and pandemic, Greece has emerged as a regional energy player, with major planned investments in natural gas infrastructure and electricity grid interconnections and upgrades.

What infrastructure upgrades are coming to Greece?

Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) Infrastructure upgrades include the Revithoussa LNG Terminal, which facilitates 30-40% of Greece’s total gas needs. The Alexandroupoli FSRU, operated by Gastrade, started commercial operations in October 2024 and increases Greece’s import capacity considerably.

Why do we need cross-border transmission lines in Greece?

Additionally, developments of cross-border transmission lines support the EU Market integration as well as contribute to the security of supply. Greece, with its potential for renewable energy generation, can export clean energy to neighboring nations, contributing to regional sustainability goals and facilitate investments.
