Iceland Solar Base Station Case China

Overview

Will Iceland join the Belt & Road Initiative in 2021?

In the Arctic sphere of relations, China also invited Iceland to become a part of the former's Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), which is not a far cry given that Iceland also helped found the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank. As of 2021, however, Iceland's approval of joining the BRI is still pending.

Why does Iceland have a backlash against China?

It is here, however, that Iceland really begins to receive backlash for its close cooperation with China. As explicitly stated in its Arctic policy documents, Iceland is strictly against any militarisation of the Arctic region.

What is the relationship between China and Iceland?

One of the most important sources of cooperation between Iceland and China is also the development of sustainable energy, particularly geothermal energy. Thanks to its natural resources, Iceland is largely self-sufficient in its production and use of energy, the majority (over 85%) of which comes from sustainable, mainly geothermal (66%), sources.

Will Iceland join China's BRI?

When Iceland began its consideration of joining China's BRI the same year, it was swiftly brought back into the radar of the United States, which even went as far as to diplomatically nudge Iceland towards a decision, and to thank the nation for declining the offer - despite the fact that Iceland has still not clearly done so.

Will Iceland get caught in a geopolitical crossfire?

As the global pivot towards China as an important great power continues, and the Arctic grows in prominence, small nations like Iceland are increasingly bound to get caught in the potential geopolitical crossfire.

Can large-scale PV bases be built in northwest China?

To solve this imbalance, large-scale PV bases can be constructed in northwest China, and the resultant excess PV resources can be exported to the load centers of electricity consumption in eastern, southern, and central China; however, the construction costs and instability of PV power generation must be addressed in advance.
