Can energy storage systems be deployed in Indonesia?

Tapping into the limited but existing opportunities for deploying energy storage systems (ESS) is vital for expanding their role in Indonesia's power sector. At present, the greatest potential for ESS deployment lies in smaller and/or isolated systems, as well as in industrial or large scale commercial solar rooftop PV with BESS.

Does Indonesia need more energy storage capacity?

(Hartatik) Jakarta—A report by the Institute for Essential Services Reform (IESR) highlights that policies that encourage the growth of ESS in Indonesia must support its development. The report, titled Powering the Future, estimates that Indonesia needs to have at least 60.2 GW of energy storage capacity by 2060 to support the energy transition.

Why is battery energy storage system important in Indonesia?

However, given the challenge of Indonesia's geological landscape, with many off-grid and remote areas, there is growing intermittency issue that hamper the development of solar and wind generation. Hence, the battery energy storage system (BESS) technologies have a critical role in the development of Indonesia's renewable energy.

What are some potential energy storage projects in ASEAN?

Other potential energy storage projects are the Cirata projects—the largest floating solar planned for ASEAN at 145 MW in Purwakarta region, West Java and eastern parts of Indonesia such as 2x50 MW in Bali and 70MW in the new capital, the city of Nusantara, East Kalimantan.

What is Sembcorp & PLN Nusantara renewables doing in Indonesia?

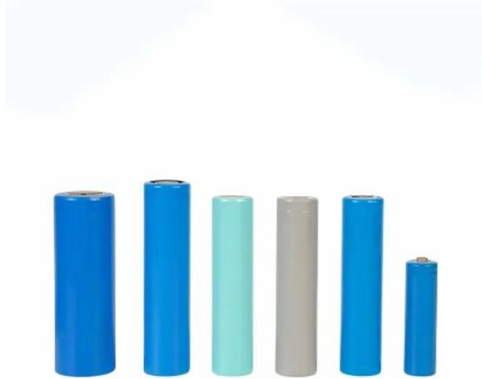

This is the first major solar project in Indonesia undertaken by Sembcorp Industries. The company collaborated with PLN Nusantara Renewables to incorporate advanced solar and energy storage technologies into the plant. Apart from this initiative, Indonesia is working on other renewable energy projects.

Does Indonesia need solar & wind energy storage?

Although, there is no policy mandating the installation of energy storage in solar or wind projects in Indonesia, the abundance of solar and wind resources in Indonesia's archipelago and increased potential demand across industries indicate that BESS demand is poised to grow substantially in the near future.
